WORKING PAPERS AND WORK IN PROGRESS

1. What Anchors Standard-setting Deliberations?
– This paper introduces an LLM-based framework that organizes International Accounting Standards Board (IASB) meeting deliberations into a multi-level taxonomy. Using this taxonomy, I provide novel evidence on the quality and effectiveness of the standard-setting process, including metrics for deliberation range, depth, balance, and polarization, as well as measures of standard-setter style.
2. Quantifying Standard-setting Deliberations, with Laurence van Lent and Menghan Zhu (R&R at the Journal of Accounting Research).
– We develop a publicly accessible, fully indexed, and speaker-attributed dataset of official IASB meeting recordings using voiceprint technology and computational linguistics methods. We use the data to construct refined measures addressing open questions in the political process of accounting standard setting, including ideology and interest-group influence.
3. Bank Credit Response to Corporate Disclosure Regulation (R&R at the Journal of Accounting & Economics).
– Using supervisory bank-borrower level data from the Deutsche Bundesbank (i.e., German Federal Bank), I investigate how firm-level disclosure regulation influences the competition and capital allocation across different banking groups.
4. Detecting Directional Shifts in the Standard-setting Process. Work in progress.
